Depreo jury tampering alleged; defense seeks hearing, new trial

By RICH ADAMS
Allegations of jury tampering and a request for a new trial for convicted murderer Charles Edward (Chuck) Depreo are contained in a special bill of exception filed in Hancock County Circuit Court Wednesday.

Depreo was convicted in January of the April 8, 1976 murder of Waveland schoolteacher Janice Ladner.

Depreo's attorney, James Atchison of Mobile, filed the special bill and a signed affidavit with Circuit Court Clerk Henry Otis Wednesday, alleging earlier reports of jury tampering did occur during the January trial.

The affidavit, signed by Atchison's special investigator, alleges the jury was not properly sequestered during the second week-long trial which resulted in a conviction and subsequent life sentence for the 18-year-old Kiln resident.

Jury Foreman Kelvin Schultz told of the improper sequestering during an interview with Atchison's investigator Herman Randolph (Randy) Bridges and Highway Patrol Investigator Joe Price, according to the motion filed with Circuit Court Clerk Henry Otis.

The January trial was the second for Depreo. An earlier trial in July, 1976 resulted in a hung jury and mistrial.

Depreo was found guilty of first-degree murder in January, convicted of the shooting death of Ms. Ladner.

He is also facing trial on charges he shot six-year-old Joy Lynn Ladner in the shoulder, and burned the Ladner home in an alleged attempt to cover the murder.

Atchison and his associate, Richard Horne, filed for an appeal with the State Supreme Court following the January trial. That appeal is still pending, awaiting a transcript of the trial.

According to the bill of exception filed Wednesday, the jury was not sequestered properly and jurors were allowed to make telephone calls, leave the Waveland Resort Inn where they were being sequestered, and allowed to view and read media reports concerning the trial.

According to the motion filed Wednesday, "the sequestration of the jury in this cause was conducted in a manner in violation of the defendant's rights to due process under the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Mississippi."

"The sequestration of the jury...was conducted in such a manner as to allow prohibitive matter to come to the attention of various jury members and as such worked to prejudice the fundamental rights of the defendant in violation of the law."

"During the sequestration of the jury...members were allowed to view newspapers containing matters specifically excluded from evidence...view television and listen to radio reports which contained matters specifically excluded from evidence in violation of the law..." the motion reads.

"During the sequestration of the jury...members of the jury were allowed contact with outside sources and persons wherein matters concerning the trial were discussed...members of the jury left the confines of the motel wherein they were sequestered and did travel to various points which resulted in prejudice to the defendant...the bill of exception continues."

"Wherefore, the premises considered, the defendant respectfully moves that this court order a new trial in this matter or in the alternative set a date for a hearing of the matters complained of...or take such action as the law requires consonant with said pleading."

City clerk to approve Bay building permits

By ELLIS CUEVAS
A group of Bay St. Louis beachfront merchants appeared before a special joint meeting of the City Council and Zoning and Planning Commission Tuesday.

The merchants appeared following the appearance last week of Paul Vegas, chairman of the Zoning and Planning Commission, at a Council meeting when he alleged the issuance of illegal building permits by the city's building inspector.

At the start of the meeting, Council President James Thrifflay relinquished the chair to Vice-president Pete Bevenutti to make the following motion which was seconded by Bevenutti.

"All applications for building permits must be filed with the city clerk. At that time the applicant must furnish the clerk with three sets of plans. The first set is to be retained by the clerk, the second set is to be presented to the planning and zoning commission by the minutes clerk, and the third set is to be given to the city building inspector."

"Upon receipt of the permit application the city clerk will check the plans and the city zoning map to confirm...the proposed structure conforms with existing regulations of the city."

"The clerk will certify that the proposed building and its proposed occupancy does meet existing zoning regulations by signing the center of the copy of the plans that will be sent to the building inspector along with a properly completed form."

"Only after the plans have been signed by the city clerk may the building inspector issue the building permit."

The motion by Thrifflay was then open for discussion.

A question arose as to who would fill in the blanks on whether off street parking meets zoning regulations for the type of business.

Thrifflay recommended Kelly McQueen, city clerk, adding the building inspector, Fip Johnson would have to do the checking of materials the buildings are constructed out of and whether the structures are properly built.

Johnson reminded the Council that his office had to have two sets of plans according to law, as he keeps one and returns one to the contractor.

Transportation problems

Shrimpers 'not hurting' for fuel

By RICH ADAMS
The continuing gasoline crisis which has caused long lines and limited sales at local service stations has not affected the shrimping industry in Hancock County, according to one local shrimper.

The crisis, however, may cause problems after the shrimp are caught as independent truckers striking against the high cost of diesel fuel will not deliver the frozen seafood to food processing companies in the north.

The Bayou Cadet Marine diesel pumps ran dry Friday and a new shipment of fuel was expected Wednesday, according to pump operator John Ladner.

Marshall Strong, owner of Standard Seafood in Bay St. Louis, said diesel fuel is being rationed to fishermen to "spread it out," but added no boats have tied up and stopped operation due to lack of fuel.

Ladner, however, said he has not imposed any limits on fuel sales, but will be forced to if short supplies of diesel continue.

Strong said the Bayou Cadet fuel allocation is limited to 100 gallons per boat, and said the price of diesel fuel has risen over that of regular gasoline.

"Diesel fuel is higher than gasoline...I never thought I would live to see the day that would happen," Strong said Tuesday.

"But that price increase is just like everything else," he added.

"Nobody has had to tie up because of lack of fuel. We aren't hurting for gas, but John Ladner has limited supplies to 100 gallons per boat," Strong said.

Strong said shrimping expeditions vary in duration, some lasting 14 hours while other last all day and night.

Landmark Bay shop closing

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Customers and friends of Bobby Anne Bakery on Main Street in Bay St. Louis were shocked by a hand printed notice which appeared Wednesday morning reporting the closing of the landmark establishment.

Lawrence and Tottie Jacobi opened their business on July 4, 1940 and their final day will be June 30, 1979.

Mrs. T. R. Robin walked into the bakery and told Mrs. Jacobi "I'm just ill" after reading the sign. The Robins were owners of the Globe Laundry which closed several years ago.

Telephone company reports $177 million state growth

South Central Bell reports a record $177 million expenditures during 1979 telephone construction program is the largest in the history of South Central Bell's operation in this state.

"Mississippi is on the move economically," said Edmonds, "and the growing demand for telephone service reflects it. Our forecasts for the five-year period, 1979-1983, indicate a need for more than $861 million in new telephone construction, over half of it for growth alone."

"In 1978 alone the 372,000 telephones we installed provided telephone service to an additional 24,000 customers. We currently serve almost 82 percent of Mississippi households. Our construction expenditures must continue to grow at an accelerated rate if we are to provide Mississippi customers with the telephone facilities they need," he explained. "A modern efficient telephone system is absolutely vital to this state," Edmonds said. "Not only is the telephone a necessity for the average family in order to conduct the business of running a household, but good telephone service is also a necessity for the state's economic development. Most businesses simply could not survive without a reliable telephone system."

"We are committed to this state's economic development," Edmonds said. "In the last year," he pointed out, "South Central Bell has announced several major investments in Mississippi, including a new Mississippi headquarters building in downtown Jackson, and a new Western Electric telephone equipment distribution center in Madison County."

Edmonds pointed out that

South Central Bell's plans include provisions for improving, as well as expanding, telephone service.

The Telephone Company plants to install electronic switching systems in 30 additional locations during the next five years, including complete replacement of the Jackson downtown switching complex.

In addition, number identification on long distance calls will be introduced in 60 additional exchanges, which will make that service available to all Mississippi subscribers.

While announcing the company's long range plans, Edmonds issued the following progress report on its 1978 Mississippi operations:

-Total telephones in service, 1,388,544.

-Total employees, 7,934.

(Total employees including Long Lines and Western Electric 8309).

-Total payroll (including benefits), 157 million.

-Total state and local taxes, $35.6 million.

Total expenditures for goods, services and contract work paid to Mississippi suppliers and businesses, $60 million.

-Total new construction expenditures which provided facilities for 57,000 additional telephones; an enlarged statewide communications network to handle a five percent increase in local and long distance calling, $168.8 million.

-The installation of over 432,000 circuit-miles of wire in cable.

-The construction of three major central office building additions, eight new central office buildings, and two new service operations centers.

The further reduction of rural eight-party service. During 1978, the number of subscribers with eight-party service was reduced by 58 percent, from 39,361 to 16,517.

-Automatic number identification to a total of 592,000 customers, up to 10 percent over the previous year.

-Made Touchstone service available to 491,000 customers, up 7 percent over the previous year.

-New PhoneCenter Stores in Greenville, Jackson, Louisville, West Point, Brookhaven, McComb, Corinth, and Grenada where customers can have a convenient place to come in to shop for telephone service and pick-up equipment.

"When a customer picks up his telephone receiver to make a call," Edmonds said, "he wants to make it right then - instant dial tone, a clear line, no noise, good transmission."

"In Mississippi, he gets it 99 percent of the time," the company official said.

Eye researchers cite anhydrous dangers

In soil, anhydrous ammonia can mean abundant crops, but in an eye - this potent fertilizer can cause painful injury and even blindness.

The Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness urges use of protective eyewear when handling and applying anhydrous. It must be both available and used to effectively prevent eye injury.

Within seconds after contact, a Society spokesman said, anhydrous ammonia begins destroying cells and tissues of the eye.

Immediate first aid treatment involves flushing the eyes with fresh water for at least 15 minutes.

Never apply salves or ointments as this will complicate later medical treatment which is vital.

MSPB suggest that farmers and user of anhydrous carry a squeeze bottle of water in a shirt pocket for flushing eyes in case of an accident.

A five gallon water tank should be attached to the applicator and all equipment carefully checked daily at hose fittings and connections.

A weak hose or faulty valve can lead to a blinding accident.

"FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE," a dramatic color film depicting the dangers of anhydrous ammonia fertilizer, may be borrowed from the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness at 115 Broadmoor Drive, Jackson, Ms. 39206 or by calling 362-6965.

The Mississippi Society, an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, is a non-profit, voluntary health agency engaged in preventing blindness through community service programs, public and professional education and research.

Cochran brings office to people

Mobile office
By LESLIE WILLIAMS
U.S. Senator Thad Cochran's field representative Woodrow Mathews, operating out of a mobile office, visited the Hancock County Youth Court Center last week to hear and record constituents problems with the federal government.

The representative said all complaints received from Hancock County residents will be submitted by him to the senator's staff experts in Jackson.

If the Jackson experts can not find solutions to the problems in their fields, Mathews explained, solutions will be sought from Washington.

Mathews said he will use Cochran's mobile office to visit all 42 counties in Mississippi. "I'll stop in some counties twice," he noted.

The field representative feels Cochran's mobile office allows the senator to be more responsive to his constituents.

Hancock residents had complaints about the veterans administration, social security, civil service disability and retirement during Mathews' visit.

Mathews said the mobile office has been in operation for approximately one month.

"The plan is to visit each county approximately three times a year," said the field representative.

Senator Cochran will sometimes travel to individual counties via the mobile office when the legislature is in recess, noted Mathews.

"In theory," the representative explained, "the office is taken to the people rather than the people visiting the office."

You need to be registered to vote

The August primary elections are fast approaching, yet, many possible electors will not be able to play a part because they have failed to register to vote.

The Constitution gives us the right to cast our ballots for the candidates of our choice, but the right to cast those ballot is not used by everyone.

There is a tendency for those who are lazy and not registered to vote to scream the loudest about the political leaders not doing their job the way they should.

Yet, these few people have an opportunity of expressing their desires for candidates whom they think could do a better job, or re-electing the ones whom they think are doing the proper things, and they don't take the few minutes to go to the Courthouse and register.

Rules have changed drastically in recent years as far as who can register to vote, and there isn't that long waiting period.

In order to vote in either the August Democratic or Republican primaries, an elector must be registered at least 30 days before the election and be a County resident 30 days before registration.

Recent changes of course give 18 year olds the right to cast their ballots, but, they too have to register.

As a matter of fact, many 17 year olds will be able to vote in the August elections if they will become 18 on or before the Nov. 6 general election, if registered, 30 days before August 7th.

The place to register is the Circuit Clerk's office at the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis. The office is normally open Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., and remains open longer near election.

If a person is a resident of the City of Bay St. Louis or Waveland, they must also register in their respective cities in order to vote in municipal elections.

To the qualified electors of Hancock County who cast their ballot every election, you support Our Constitution of this great America.

FBI gives precautions for women living alone

CRIME RESISTANCE

Women living alone have many unique safety problems.

Their exposure to these risks can be greatly minimized through some simple precautions:

- (1) Use good judgment in selecting a place to live.
- (2) Have the locks in your new home rekeyed or change the locks, preferable to dead bolts.
- (3) Don't leave keys under the door mat or in the mailbox and never put your address on your key ring.
- (4) Have sound locks installed on windows and sliding glass doors.

- (5) List only your initial and last name on your mail box. (Do not use "Miss," "Ms." or "Mrs.")
- (6) Have a "wide angle viewer" or "peep" hole installed in your front door.
- (7) If you list your telephone number, show your initials and last name only or list your complete name with no address.
- (8) Demand identification from unknown callers.
- (9) Hang up immediately on threatening or obscene telephone callers and never give personal information to strangers on the phone.

Summing it up, the key to personal safety at home is common sense.

MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL —
THE STATE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

STRAIGHT TALK NOW

A survey recently completed by a state government committee revealed that more than 90 percent of all questionnaires completed by state agency personnel contained errors — many contained multiple errors.

The findings also indicated that 107 agencies had no guidelines for uniform travel expenses, and 62 reported that they have no employee operating procedures manuals.

Errors and lack of guidelines are contributing factors to the steadily climbing costs of state government, and this price spiral should be one of the priority issues for state candidates.

A dollar's worth of services for every tax dollar is what the citizens of Mississippi deserve, and they should look at candidates closely and recognize those who address this problem with straight talk and straight answers.

Campaign speeches are valueless when candidates are not explicit about the issues. Fuzzy answers with smiling faces are too often the order of the day with ballot box mistakes realized only after the election.

Voters should demand straight talk now with straight answers and solutions.

AUTOMOBILE ACROBATICS—Alfred Raboteau Sr. surveys damages to his fence at 428 St. John St., Bay St. Louis, inflicted in a hit-and-run incident about 2 a.m. Saturday. The errant vehicle involved hopped over a deep ditch twice and squeezed between the fence and a roadside utility pole, narrowly averting serious damages to the vehicle and possible serious injury to the unknown driver. Police are seeking a greenish-yellow vehicle believed to have been involved. (Staff photo-Edgar Perez)

Health and Safety Tip

Last year more than 6,100 injuries and one death resulted from the use of fireworks. The Mississippi State Board of Health in cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) urges those persons planning to celebrate the 4th of July this year with fireworks to purchase only the less explosive "Class C" fireworks and to exercise extreme caution in their use.

CPSC regulations regarding "Class C" fireworks have been in effect since late 1976, limiting the maximum powder in charge in firecrackers for consumer use to 50 milligrams (.77 grains, less than 1 teaspoon).

These regulations also set performance and labeling requirements for common firework devices other than firecrackers.

According to CPSC, illegal fireworks distributed in Kentucky and West Virginia last year resulted in more than 150 injuries within a matter of days.

The defective fireworks exploded immediately when lighted instead of providing the usual delay from the fuse. Twelve young people were treated at one West Virginia hospital and seven lost one or more fingers. Other causes of accidents from fireworks were the use of homemade fireworks and the careless use of legal fireworks.

During the Independence Day period, CPSC personnel will be inspecting manufacturers, importers, and distributors, and retailers of fireworks sold for consumer use to assure compliance with regulations.

The Commission also recommends that consumers learn their state and local municipality's laws on fireworks control. Some laws allow all "Class C" fireworks; some allow only sparklers or "snakes", and some ban all "Class C" fireworks.

For those people who will be using fireworks on the 4th of July, CPSC offers the following suggestions:

- Make sure that there is a manufacturer's label on all fireworks, as well as instructions for proper use; illegally manufactured fireworks rarely have either;
- Store fireworks in a dry, cool place and avoid rough handling which might damage the fuses;
- Provide adult supervision for children and do not allow very young children to handle fireworks;
- Light fireworks only outdoors in a clear area away from houses, dry brush, or anything else which might catch fire. Keep water available in case of fire;
- Light only one device at a time; and
- Dispose of fireworks properly and soak malfunctioning devices with water to end their possible usage.

For further information, contact Paul Rankin, Mississippi State Board of Health, at 34-6616.

Washington report

By Trent Lott

ENERGY UPDATE

By REP. TRENT LOTT
5th District, Mississippi

Even as President Carter faced the nation last week on his strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union, another potential crisis was hitting close to home. There was talk of gasoline rationing in the Nation's Capital.

While Washington is not the national trend-setter that California, for example, is, the lines which formed around this area's 1,200 gas stations were just as long and tempers were just as short as they were on the West Coast a few weeks ago.

It was an ironic situation, because Washington is better known for giving gas (heartburn, really) than for getting it. Still, some arrangements had to be made.

Gas rationing late last week became a reality here, with implementation of a system based on the last digit of car tags. The system is designed to help end those long lines.

While gas rationing in Washington seems far removed from the situation in Mississippi, it does provide an opportunity to give you an update of ongoing energy matters. First, the House Ways and Means Committee has approved a compromise version of the President's "windfall profits" tax.

The bill would net an estimated $27.8 billion in the next five years, giving the government a portion of the extra revenues the oil companies will gain from the phasing out of domestic price controls, which began June 1. The bill was forwarded to the Rules Committee, on which I serve.

I still have some reservations about how the revenue generated by the windfall profits tax will be used, and hopefully my questions will be answered during debate.

That bill involves domestically-produced supplies, but almost one-half of the 20 million barrels of oil used every day in the U.S. comes from foreign sources, like the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which is gearing up for its summer conference in Geneva this week. When those price levels will reportedly be set.

There have been reports that Saudi Arabia, the world's leading exporter, would consider increasing its daily output if such industrialized countries as the U.S. decrease their imports. That would mean more intensive conservation measures on our end.

Other energy-related plans are also under consideration. One proposes a multi-billion-dollar fund to encourage the development of new domestic energy sources, like synthetic fuels. Under the proposal, loans, investments and price guarantees would be available to people trying to find alternatives to foreign oil, and it could include making oil from coal and biomass (garbage) and wider use of gasohol.

The other is a consolidation of the existing 114 federal programs now attempting to assist transportation in rural areas. Some experts believe a more effective public transportation system in isolated, rural areas could be beneficial in saving energy.

Vacationers praise emergency services

June 23, 1979

Dear Mr. Cuevas,

Recently we were vacationing in your area — one we have come to thoroughly enjoy over the last three summers — when my husband was seriously injured in an outboard motor accident.

We would like to express our gratitude to the Waveland Police, the Mobile Medic attendants, the staff of Hancock General Hospital and especially its Dr. Joseph Lee whose attentive, conscientious and skilled services we were blessed to receive.

How fortunate you are to have such a fine doctor in your area.

I am happy to report that my husband has had a splendid recovery and has been able to actively resume his dental practice.

We surely credit the initial care of the acknowledged people as a large factor in his recovery.

Thank you for your kind attention.

Most sincerely,
Mrs. Anne Laville

Jaycees withdraw race sponsorship

June 26, 1979

Notice to the General Public,

We, the members of the Central Hancock Jaycees, regret to inform the citizens of Hancock County, the State of Mississippi, and all persons concerned that we have been forced to cancel our advertised combination canoe regatta, softball tournament, and political rally.

These events were scheduled at McLeod Water Park July 13, 14 and 15. We hereby set forth these causes for the cancellation:

The McLeod Water Park Commission, whose members are appointed by the five members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, has voted not to waive the entrance fee to the park during these events.

As a civic organization, the Central Hancock Jaycees cannot see fit to allow people to be charged a fee to gain access to a fund raising event when these funds are to be used in improving the education, recreation facilities, and environment of the citizens of Hancock County.

The canoe regatta mentioned above is one of a series held throughout the state and primarily sponsored by the Pearl River Basin Association, with local civic organizations as co-sponsors at each regatta site.

Signed, Richard Hoda,
Treasurer for Central Hancock Jaycees

Blalock to head umbrella agency

Colonel Charlie L. Blalock, head of the Corps of Engineers Mobile District for the past three years, has been named by Governor Cliff Finch to head up the newly created Mississippi Department of Natural Resources.

The new department Blalock will direct was created by the consolidation of four existing state bureaus and other agencies.

In announcing the appointment on June 19th at the state capitol, Governor Finch noted that Blalock has extensive experience in natural resources development and management accumulated during his some 30 years service with the Corps of Engineers.

The Mobile District, where he has been district engineer since June 1976, carries out civil works projects as well as military construction in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and Louisiana.

The new department he will head combines previous functions managed by the Bureau of Pollution Control, Recreation and Parks, Geology and Energy Resources, and Soils and Water Resources. It will also oversee functions of several river basin management districts.

Colonel Blalock will retire from the Army on July 31st. He will be succeeded by Colonel Robert H. Ryan who is currently attending the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in Washington, D.C.

Also in July, Col. Donald R. Pope, deputy district engineer for the Corps of Engineers Mobile District, will retire from the Army, and become chief engineer of the general civil engineering group at the engineering firm of Michael Baker Jr., Inc., at its southern headquarters in Jackson.

Colonel Pope is leaving the Army after 22 years of service. He has served as Deputy District Engineer in Mobile since August 1976.

joyed the work, the tremendous amount and variety of it. And I have appreciated the tremendous staff here."

"Being a district engineer of deputy district engineer would be an impossible task if we didn't have good people. The quality of work here in the District is just superb."

When Colonel Pope arranged for an April job interview in Jackson, he had no idea he would be in town fighting a flood. "I went to my interview in combat boots," he said.

TV producer seeking young Southern talent

Will your son be the star of TV producer Norman Lear's next hit?

Casting agents will be combing the South next month looking for two young boys, one black and one white, to portray nine-year-olds in an upcoming television series. Norman Lear, creator of "All in the Family," and Alex Haley, author of "Roots," have teamed to make a series about two boys who grow up in a small town in the South during the Depression.

CBS has contracted with Lear for a two-hour pilot and six one-hour episodes to go on the air starting in March 1980. Lear said he is looking for real Southern boys to play the roles because "it's difficult enough for mature actors to do a Southern accent."

Casting agent Reuben

Cannon will be in Jackson, Mississippi, July 25-29 looking for talent. People interested in their children being considered for an audition should contact the Mississippi Film Commission, P.O. Box 849, Jackson, MS 39205, 354-6715, for an application. Only children with some acting experience should apply, and applications will not be accepted after July 15.

State's unemployment below national rate

The State's unemployment rate dropped to 5.1 percent in May, a decrease of four-tenths percent compared to April's 5.5 percent jobless rate, according to Mississippi Employment Security Commission Executive Director Edgar C. Lloyd Jr.

The 5.1 percent for the state was lower than the national rate of 5.2 for May. MESC figures showed 51,100 unemployed and 942,100 employed out of a civilian labor force of 993,200. The initial Unemployed Insurance Claims totaled 13,363 for May.

Q—Can a female veteran claim her husband as a dependent?

A—Yes. When drawing compensation, pension or education benefits from the VA, a female veteran may claim her husband as a dependant.

Q—Last semester I was attending school with GI Bill education assistance. I dropped out of school in the middle of the term, but I received two additional checks. I plan to re-enter training in the near future. Must I repay the additional funds I received or can I just apply them to future education?

A—The checks you received are considered overpayment. You must repay this money at the earliest possible date. You will not receive additional assistance until you have repaid the overpayments.

Q—I obtained a release of liability when I let a non-veteran assume my home loan. Am I eligible for restoration of my VA home loan guaranty entitlement?

A—Release of liability does not restore VA entitlement automatically. Entitlement used to guarantee the loan may be restored only when the loan is paid in full and the veteran has disposed of the property.

Gulfport Memorial re-accredited

Memorial Hospital at Gulfport has been awarded the Certificate of Accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals (JCAH), according to W.R. Burton, hospital administrator.

The two-year accreditation became effective on June 18, 1979, marking the eleventh consecutive time the hospital has been reaccredited.

The accreditation was achieved following a thorough survey of the hospital by a professional survey team of the Joint Commission's Hospital Accreditation Program (HAP) in January, 1979. The hospital was evaluated on the basis of information gained from questionnaires, other documentation, and an on-site visit, which includes conferences with professional staff, department heads and members of the governing body of the hospital.

Four more historic places in Register

Four new Mississippi properties have been entered in the National Register of Historic Places; the Manse in Natchez, the Colonel J.K. Coffey house in Salis, the Meridian Baptist Seminary in Meridian, and the Houston Carnegie Library in Houston.

Heritage Conservation and Recreation Service, Department of the Interior. Mississippi currently has 288 properties listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

Supervisor seeks liquidated damages

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Beat One Supervisor Bert Courge has requested the State Aid Road Division of the Mississippi Department of Highways assess liquidated damages of $135 each day to Broadway and Seal Engineers of Playune for every day the re-surfacing of the Ansley Road in Pearlburg falls behind schedule.

Courge said Tuesday the engineers, under state-aid project regulations, are required to completely re-surface the road in "48 fair weather working days."

Also Tuesday, Courge stated the engineers had used 140 of the work days and has 10 "fair weather days" left to complete the Ansley project.

"Broadway and Seal were not working on the road for several days when the weather was good," the supervisor explained, "so I decided to notify engineer Marcus Williams of the State Aid Road Division to fine the contractors if the work is not completed on schedule."

"Broadway and Seal have supervised the widening, and some re-surfacing to the three mile road, in addition to installation of a drainage system underneath," Courge continued.

"What remains to be done," he said Tuesday, "is to put a base coat on one fourth mile of the road and two overlay surfaces over the remainder of the road."

Courge said he has no control over the Ansley project going on in his Beat until the road is turned over from the state division to the county.

The supervisor noted that Broadway and Seal said the delay was the result of some equipment damaged by April flooding.

Courge said the state aid road division may grant the engineers a time extension.

Mobil Medic membership drive opens

Mobile Medic Ambulance Service will conduct its annual subscription drive July 1 - 31, according to John Rester, president and general manager.

More than 11,000 membership renewal forms have been mailed, which present members in Hancock and western Harrison counties should be receiving within the next few days, Rester said.

Cost of a family membership is $28 this year. "We are pleased to provide family emergency medical service at this low rate," Rester said, "especially during this period of high inflation and rising medical costs."

In comparison, he said the service "costs less than installation fee for cable TV, a pound of coffee a month, or a package of cigarettes a week."

"Gasoline is just one example of rising costs," he said, "when you consider that our ambulances will log more than 70,000 miles this year to answer more than 1,800 calls in Hancock County alone."

Rester added, "Low membership cost is offered only during the month of July, and no new memberships can be accepted after the July 31st deadline" and that non-members will be required to pay $65 for each emergency call, he explained.

Rester pointed to substantial improvements in service Mobile Medic has made this year, including the certification of all emergency medical technicians as CPR (cardio pulmonary resuscitation) instructors.

These instructors have been actively conducting CPR clinics throughout Mobile Medic service area.

The vital importance of this program is illustrated, he said, by statistics showing over 80 percent of heart attack patients can be saved if CPR is administered within the first four minutes following the attack.

Newly instituted this year also, is a complete paramedic training program, he said.

"New memberships are vital," Rester said, "to continue the quality of our emergency medical service."

The subscription method makes emergency medical service available to every family at the most economical rates in the nation, and also means taxpayers are not unduly burdened with total support of a very expensive emergency medical ambulance service," the company official states.

New members may pick up a form at any local bank, mail in a coupon from newspaper ads, or call 1-868-1122 toll free in Hancock County, Rester said.

He stressed membership is available only to those residents of Mobile Medic's service area which includes all of Hancock County and that portion of Harrison County west of DeBuys Road.

Kellar named on beach project

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Hancock County Board of Supervisors, at a special meeting Monday, named Board President Alton Kellar of District Two as county representative for implementation of a federally-funded program to restore the county's beach road.

President James G. Gentry recently classified Hancock County as a disaster area, entitling the county to receive federal funds for repairing the beach road damaged during an April storm.

Supervisors Tuesday meet with Bob Woodward, civil engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers Planning Division in Mobile, to determine if the Corps could restore the sand beach which was washed away during the April storm.

Woodward said Tuesday he will study the extent of beach loss in the county and report his findings to his division.

Hancock County Federal Programs Coordinator Ronnie Murray said the county may receive money for financing restoration of sand beach from "Housing and Urban Development's imminent threat program."

Both county and city officials are presently seeking means to fund a project to restore sand beach in Hancock County in conjunction with restoration of the beach road.

Whitley Strieber's "The Wolfen" to be published as a Bantam Super release on June 20.

"They are out there all right, and you will believe it from the first hair-raising page," Publishers Weekly.

The wolfen are sleek, vulpine creatures possessed of near-human intelligence who have been preying on the weakest of humans for centuries. But one of their young makes a terrible mistake—the savage killing of two New York City policemen.

And so they are hunted down by two New York City detectives. But when the wolfen begin to stalk their pursuers, a wild chase ensues, climaxing in a final scene that Publishers Weekly called "one of the most exciting in recent fiction, a real cliff-hanger."

Film rights to THE WOLFEN have been sold to King-Hitig Productions.

"The Beauty Queen" by Patricia Nell Warren. A novel of politics and homosexual love to be published July 1 in Bantam paperback.

Patricia Nell Warren, author of "The Front Runner," the acclaimed best-selling novel of homosexual love, now focuses on the subject of gay rights and politics in her latest novel, The Beauty Queen.

The novel is the story of Jeannie Laird Colter, a former beauty contest winner, actress and a state representative from Manhattan. After a long absence from politics, caused by a nervous breakdown after the death of her mother, Jeannie decides to campaign for the governorship of New York, running on a virulently anti-homosexual platform.

Drawn into the political arena are Mary Ellen and Liv, Danny and Armado, two homosexual couples whose lives are destroyed by the success of Jeannie's campaign.

They become bitter enemies and plot to take violent action against her, but it is Jeannie's own father who provides the final link that endangers her political and personal life.

Patricia Nell Warren began to write when she was ten, and as a freshman in college won the Atlantic Monthly College Fiction Award.

When "The Front Runner" was published by Bantam in 1975, it was praised as "a riveting novel" by After Dark, and her second book, "The Beauty Queen," published by Bantam in 1977, was described by Publishers Weekly as "sensitive, tense and provocative." The books have 750,000 copies combined in Bantam print.

Warren lives in upstate New York. When she is not editing for Reader's Digest Condensed Books, she breeds cats and horses and works on her next novel.

"Lost, never-before-published Doc Savage novel rescued by fan to be published as a Bantam original July 1. The Red Spider, a never-before-published Doc Savage novel rescued from oblivion by a dedicated fan, will be released this month more than 30 years after it was written.

The discovery of the manuscript is an adventure worthy of Doc Savage himself. In 1946, Lester Dent, writing under the name of Kenneth Robeson, sold a tale of Cold War espionage set in Soviet Russia to the Doc Savage pulp magazine.

Because the new editor objected to the more serious tone and decrease in gadgetry, the story was never published.

Three decades later, editor and author Will Murray, an active Doc Savage fan, rediscovered a payment record for the story while researching an article on Lester Dent. As Murray explains in his afterword to The Red Spider, it then took three years of literary detective work to confirm the existence of the manuscript and finally locate it.

Lester Dent explained the success of his Doc Savage adventures, saying, "I gallop through it as if on a picnic, a mood which often makes it hard to get fearsome, but makes swell entertainment."

But while The Red Spider retains the fast-paced adventure style of previous Doc Savage stories, it has far more political slant.

"This one is laid against a background of international trouble," wrote Dent in a note to his editor, "the question of whether or not the Soviet Union has the bomb."

In this new adventure, Doc Savage works as an international trouble-shooter for the American government, confronting the KGB for the first time. The Red Spider features Doc's first recorded superhuman flight, and his meeting with the beautiful and intriguing Seryi Mitroff, one of the few women who actually attracts the usually woman-proof Doc.

Doc Savage—the mysterious bronze-skinned superhero—first appeared on the pages of pulp magazines in 1933, and continued through the 1940s.

Bantam revived the series in 1964, with the publication of The Man of Bronze. The combination of fantasy, suspense and dry humor in Doc Savage adventures have won him countless fans; there are more than 15 million copies of Doc Savage's adventures in Bantam print.

Plantings Of Blue Salvia
Add Variety To Garden

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Silver foliage plants make good "separators" for flowers with positive, defiant colors. But when you combine the cooling intercession of blue spires with silver leaves, you have the perfect peacemaker.

That's what makes blue salvia America's favorite blue summer flower for backgrounds and cutting. You can also buy varieties with silvery white or violet blue flowers, but the mid-blue color is available everywhere.

Blue salvia is closely related to garden sage and, like it, has silvery green foliage that reflects light and makes the plants stand out. Plants grow

2 to 2.5 feet tall and will bloom all summer except in the Deep South where two plantings are customary, says Jim Perry, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service horticulturist.

Unlike red salvia, you don't need to start seeds of the blue kind early indoors. Seeds of blue salvia are large and quick sprouting when summer-sown in warm, moist soil. Seedlings develop quickly and will bloom the same time as zinnias and giant marigolds.

Look closely at the flower gardens that impress you at first sight. You'll often find a patch of blue salvia, says Perry.

ASCS Hancock-Pearl River

SAVE A FARMER,
YOU MAY NEED HIM

"Farmers are an important part of the economy," Franklin A. Gennin of the Pearl River-Hancock County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASCS) Office said.

The new Fact Book of U.S. Agriculture put out by USDA tells us that one farm worker now supplies enough food and fiber for 56 people.

Ten years ago they produced enough for 29. In 1977 Americans consumed an average of 183 lbs. of beef, veal, pork, lamb, and mutton; 54 lbs. of chicken and turkey; 82 lbs. of fresh fruits (plus 54 lbs. of processed fruit and juice); 93 lbs. of dairy products, and 128 lbs. of potatoes.

"We also used an average of 15 pounds of cotton and 1 lb. of wool."

"And we export more farm products than anyone else in the world," Gennin said. "In 1977 we exported $25 billion worth of farm products, helping our balance of trade."

"Farmers spend money, too," Gennin stressed. "They spent $88 billion on production goods and services in 1977, 81 cents out of every dollar of gross income they received."

During the last 10 years farm interest charges rose 231 percent, tax charges per acre 96 percent, farm wages 125 percent, tractors and self-propelled machinery 138 percent, other machinery 146 percent, feed prices 86 percent, seed prices 161 percent, and fertilizer 81 percent.

"For the privilege of working seven days a week in the summer, but out of doors and in clean air, in 1977 the average farm returned $756 income from the farm," Gennin said.

"That's $630 a month for personal spending and retirement for the farmer, including everyone's Social Security, off-the-farm wages, etc., that income raised to $1599 per farm for personal use," he added.

The Fact Book is for sale by the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

DIESEL FUEL
AUTHORIZED
FOR FARM USE

"Farmers are entitled to obtain sufficient diesel fuel to meet their requirements," Gennin stated.

"They are also entitled to 100 percent of their farm needs of propane, butane and gasoline. The Department of Energy (DOE) established recently a priority system for distributing diesel fuel, giving the highest priority to that used in agricultural production," he continued.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said any shortage of diesel fuel could significantly reduce the size of harvests, create a tight supply situation, and result in serious market disruptions.

Wholesale suppliers of diesel fuel will be required to provide local distributors and retailers with supplies sufficient to meet farmer's needs.

To help implement the agricultural priority, ASCS will assist farmers in making application for their fuel requirements.

"Upon request, we will help determine what constitutes agricultural production. We will also report planted acreages, cropping patterns and other information to fuel dealers, state energy offices and the Department of Energy, in support of a farmer's application," Gennin said.

If the problems cannot be solved locally, ASCS will get further help from the DOE regional office, the official concluded.

FISH FRY
McLeod Park was really a beehive of activity Friday with all of the Seniors enjoying a super picnic. Ms. Mary Calher and her husband really made us welcome and had the park looking neat as a pin.

As usual, John Rutherford, Hancock County's best cook, did the fish frying for us. Sam Perniclaro furnished good old Hancock County fish, all fillets, and plenty of them. Oscar Peterson brought the absolute best, sweetest watermelon we ever had. This was another Hancock County product.

The staff made delicious potato salad, and got French rolls from our own Bobby Ann Baker. A good time was had by all.

BIRTHDAY PARTY
Monday was our June birthday party, and we had our usual good time. It was nice having Louis Burghard back to play for us along with the Wayland Players. They sang, danced, and did some skits. Thanks Walter Vaughn for bringing this fine group.

Prizes were won by Mary Schilling and Shirley Gonzales. Both won duffers from Danny's Fried Chicken. Both of these seniors are in their 90's and still going strong. Mr. Gonzales is proud of being a real Hancock County resident and tells us that he has spent 37 birthdays in this county and the other 3 in service - two in France.

The door prize, dinner at Wheel Inn, was won by Gertrude Phaup. She and her husband will enjoy this treat. SPECIAL MESSAGE
Ms. Annell Saucier, Field Representative for Trent Lott, came by our Center to give the seniors a message from Mr. Lott. He sent word that he had been getting mail from Seniors saying they didn't like the way he has voted on various senior citizen bills. He just wanted to tell them that he really cared about their programs, he was voting against some of these bills because they had things in them that were not pertaining to senior citizens, and he was against those things. He is trying to get some things for senior citizens passed without having to pass things he doesn't approve of.

We all appreciate Congressman Lott's sensitivity to our mail. Thank you for sending us a personal answer to questions seniors have.

BUDGET TIME
It is budget time again and I will be going out requesting funding from our local governments to match federal money for our programs. I hope that all of you will remember to thank the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the city officials of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, and the United Way for the support they give us.

PATRIOTIC LUNCH
Tuesday, July 5, we will have a patriotic lunch. Please call Pam for reservations (457-9292). We will have this activity instead of our usual Monday games party. Hope all of you will come. We do have a good time.

VOTER REGISTRATION
We are having a voter registration drive for Senior Citizens this week. Be sure and register if you have not done so. We will help you in any way we can. Call Susan Krost for assistance 457-9292. Politicians pay attention to persons who vote, and this is the best way to thank those who do a good job, or replace those who do not.

To insure that you will not be defrauded, SEC suggests that you take the following precautions:
-If you get an unsolicited call or letter, ask how the company got your name.
-Find out if the offering is filed with the Securities Division of the Secretary of State's Office. The telephone number is 1-354-6548 (Jackson).

Also ask the salesman if he is licensed to sell securities in Mississippi.

The National Securities and Exchange Commission is located at 500 N. Capitol St., Washington, D.C. 20540. The telephone number is 202-755-4846. If you need additional information.

Ask for a copy of any geological report that may have been made - keep in mind that these reports are not assurances that oil or gas is present - and review it with a knowledgeable person.

The SEC also advises that you resist pressures to make a hurried decision and that you consider the risks in relation to your own financial position. Remember that legitimate companies and promoters are not hesitant to provide you with information about the company or the actual investment.

Therefore, if the people you talk to are reluctant, it should be a red flag to you to avoid making that particular investment.

Read the lease thoroughly. Know the number of years involved and the percentage of profit guaranteed in the event an oil or gas well is developed.

Organized crime, drugs labeled campaign issues

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Toxey Hall Smith, Republican candidate for Mississippi Attorney General, told a Hancock County group Friday "organized crime and drug traffic are the primary problems confronting the state—with drug sales, transportation and distribution being a $200 million industry here."

The former Federal Bureau of Investigation special agent promised Hancock County Republican Women and their friends gathered at the Wheel Inn in Bay St. Louis he would strive to end organized crime in the state. "The job of attorney general is the most important position in Mississippi," Smith said. "The governor of Mississippi doesn't have that much power because the legislature dominates politics."

The candidate said incumbent Attorney General A.F. Summer's approach to the drug problem is inadequate.

"The idea is not to have agents grow a beard and go around busting kids smoking joints (marijuana). To try to solve the drug problem from the street level is all wrong," Smith explained. "You have got to prevent the distribution of drugs before they get to the individual street pushers and consumption becomes widespread," the candidate insisted.

"To solve the problem," he continued, "you have got to determine who the real bosses are and identify the hierarchy in the underworld."

He said most drugs distributed in Mississippi are coming from New Orleans.

"The solution is to use sophisticated tools of investigation," he said, adding, "one informer is worth 10 investigators."

Smith said the sale of PCP, commonly referred to as angel dust, and other hard drugs has increased 2,500 percent in Mississippi during the period 1967-1977.

"PCP's effect on the human brain is the equivalent of the effect of a frontal lobotomy. Angel dust is widespread in Mississippi—it's a dangerous drug," Smith warned.

He added a certain type of hepatitis associated with PCP usage is now widespread in Mississippi, and is an indication the drug is a problem in the state.

JURY TAMPERING ALLEGATIONS—James Atchison, left, and Richard Horne, defense attorneys for Charles Edward (Chuck) Depreo, leave Bay St. Louis after filing a special bill of exception at the County Courthouse which alleges jury tampering occurred in the January trial in which Depreo was convicted of murder. The bill of exception was accompanied by an affidavit reflecting an interview conducted by Atchison's investigator, Herman Randolph (Randy) Bridges and Highway Patrol Investigator Joe Price with Jury Foreman Kelvin Schultz. Schultz cites instances of alleged intrusion on jury sequestering, the affidavit states. (Staff photo—Rich Adams) of exceptions alleges that on March 19, 1979, Schultz revealed the instances of alleged jury sequestering discrepancies to Price and Bridges.

"Kelvin Schultz stated that during the course of the trial various members of the jury would:

"a. Meet and talk with family members in cars outside the motel;

"b. Read newspapers even after the Judge's (Leslie B. Grant's) warnings on the second day of the trial;

"c. Watch television including news reports of the trial even after the Judge's warning on the second day of the trial;

"d. The bailiffs made no attempts to prevent jury members from either reading newspapers or watching television."

The affidavit also alleges that Schultz told Price and Bridges he called a girlfriend, Emily Mollere of Bay St. Louis, Friday, Jan. 25.

"He told Emily Mollere to call the FBI (Federal Bureau of Investigation) and tell them he was afraid for his life and he felt like he was being pressured," the affidavit states.

Spokesmen for both the Gulfport and Jackson offices FBI said they had not received any calls concerning the Depreo case when questioned in late January shortly after the first reports of jury tampering.

On Saturday, Jan. 27, minutes after court convened, Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan J. Ladner Jr.; Chief Deputy Ronnie Peterson; Highway Patrol Investigators Price, M.P. (Micky) Ladner and T.P. Naylor;

District Attorney Albert Necaise; and Atchison retired to the judges chamber with Grant reportedly to discuss a call from the FBI alleging jury tampering.

The trial continued, with the guilty verdict coming at approximately 5:27 p.m. that same day.

The affidavit filed Wednesday is dated June 4, 1979, and signed by Linda Clark, a notary public in Mobile, Ala.

Atchison declined comment on what effect the special bill of exception may have on the Depreo conviction, saying only, "Let the record speak for itself."

Investigator Price declined to comment on the matter, referring any questions to Necaise.

A source close to the defense said the burden of decision is now on the State, which must investigate the allegations by questioning other jurors to determine if the allegations are true.

Jury tampering investigations were reported Feb. 4, but law enforcement officials and the district attorney would not confirm those reports at that time. Judge Grant said he had heard "rumors" of the investigations in February, but also refused to confirm the reports.

Depreo meanwhile, lodged in an undisclosed jail in south Mississippi, is awaiting a decision on his appeal of the Jan. 27 verdict.

The additional charges of aggravated assault and arson are being continued from term to term pending the outcome of the appeal, which will be heard 45 days following receipt of the transcript of the January trial.

Toxey Hall Smith

offices in Wiggins and Ocean Springs, feels he is "the best qualified person for the attorney general's office because of legal background and service with the FBI."

"I worked for the FBI from 1962-67 as a supervisor in the organized crime division and received extensive training in drugs and organized crime," Smith emphasized.

The candidate noted he also learned to speak Italian and five dialects fluently as a part of his training.

"In the last 10 years there has not been a single indictment against organized crime or hard drugs in Mississippi by the state attorney general's office," maintained Smith.

Smith alleged the state's organized crime division is staffed with "political flunkies."

"The crime problem is very serious and we need qualified people working in that division," the candidate insisted. "Statistics reveal that approximately 70 percent of our school children are exposed to hard drugs that doesn't mean they take drugs—it simply means they are exposed to them," he emphasized.

"The governor's office can not do anything about this, the lieutenant governor can't do anything about this—only the attorney general's office can do anything about the drug problem," the candidate exhorted.

Smith, who said he is a seventh generation Mississippian, believes "There is a double standard of justice in Mississippi—one for the people and one for politicians," which says he will change if elected.

"Let's not make stealing by politicians profitable let us ban plea bargaining by politicians and give them the maximum fine for a crime," Smith implored.

Mrs. Jacobi said, "I am really concerned about our employee Elizabeth Favre. She has been a faithful employee for 15 years."

"We hate to close because of so many faithful friends and customers throughout the years. Without their continued patronage we wouldn't have lasted so long," commented Mrs. Jacobi.

The bakery owners will continue to reside in the building and plan on selling the equipment. The oven used for baking the bread rolls, pastries, etc., is being sold to a local resident.

The bakery was founded over 80 years ago with only one branch in the United States. It was founded by the late Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Chevis, long time friends of the Jacobi family, especially the children, and a few years later many other visitors came to the bakery.

The amendment was changed to four sets of plans must be submitted, of which two are for the building inspector.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex told the Council, "I think the resolution would have to be an amendment to the zoning ordinance."

The motion was changed to an amendment and given unanimous approval by Council members.

Vegas offered the Zoning and Planning Commission as being "available to the City Clerk" if help is required in preparing the forms for permit application before the building inspector would give approval.

Maurice Colley, developer who is renovating the old Echo building at State and North Beach said, "I have had experience with this type of system in several cities and the procedure is common. I don't think it will cause any undo delay."

Zoning member Ann Williamson commented, "What has happened has happened, forget it," concerning discussion of permits which previously issued with some problems.

Harold Saucier, owner of a building under construction on the beach front recalled, "What is the big gripe, parking, 30 years ago there were more buildings (on the beach) gambling, etc., you are out to stop building."

Vegas replied, "No" mentioning several buildings which have been purchased in recent years, referring the property could have been purchased for parking by the City.

"I get three or four calls a week from people saying their driveways are blocked, or complaining about noise," stated Vegas.

Jerry Seuzeneau whose wife is co-owner of the Little Mushroom allowed, "We would like to see the Beach grow, it is good for my business and the city. And the City should work with the business people, if you put a stop on the beach you hurt the whole city."

Zoning member Wilson Wehrs, a former beach merchant, reported, "We all realize we have a problem, (parking), 30 years ago the road was wider. We should acquire some off street parking."

"I'm not criticizing Mr. Johnson, I don't think he knew that was in his jurisdiction," Wehrs said about a dog kennel mentioned earlier in the session.

Wehrs reminded the group that several years ago the idea of a by-pass for the through traffic was considered. Thriftley mentioned two suggestions the Council received in helping aid the congestion.

One was the moving of the sidewalk about five feet back on the water side of the road from Main Street almost to deMontuzin Avenue.

The other suggestion was given by Jules Lagarde to the City and that was to follow the idea of other communities using space behind buildings for parking.

Jim Tull, Bay Front Bedding proprietor, commented on the use of the parking lot on the Beach saying, "If you ride by the parking lot in the day you will see two vehicles and one is mine. At night you may see four or five cars using it."

Vegas mentioned, "The Louisville and Nashville right-of-way could be possible parking. The R-1 (residential) areas shouldn't be subjected to parking after hours."

There was some talk about delivery trucks using the road, especially during peak hours with mentions of how certain times deliveries were restricted in the New Orleans French Quarter.

Mrs. Jerry Seuzeneau spoke about how the town she came from had torn down old buildings and made parking in the downtown areas.

Zoning and Planning members Don Favre, Dan Fredricks, Bill Tate and Joseph Marochino also made comments for the commission.

Marochino brought up the importance of the variance commission as being critical in the issuance of changes because they hear the grievances, and are the only ones who can authorize changes in the issuance of a permit. The Council cannot make the changes, the way he understands the law, Marochino said.

Mayor Larry Bennett thanked all at the meeting saying, "I do appreciate all of you coming up here. We accomplished a lot tonight."

"Before someone would talk to me and raise cane about something, the Council did and then others would tell a Council member or members about something the Mayor did wrong."

Council was unanimous in asking the Mayor to contact an engineering firm to make a proposal on the removal of the sidewalk back about five feet on one side of Beach Boulevard and the construction of a new one.

Several merchants expressed real concern about how long the project would take to complete.

If the street widening comes about, the merchants were told they could come down to the Council when the bids were opened and question the successful contractor.

The meeting adjourned with most in attendance expressing the view that much was accomplished toward a better understanding between the merchants and council members.

Shrimpers.....

He explained a '671 motor' will use seven gallons per hour, running hard and pulling a net. Some larger motors will use up a little more than that.

"The conditions are not that critical yet," Strong said.

"Nobody has lost any working time, but things keep getting tight," he added.

Ladner said he expects his supply of fuel to run short any day, and said diesel limitation is "just around the corner."

"Right now we aren't having any problem getting fuel," Ladner said Tuesday.

"I am just waiting for one day when the suppliers (Spur Oil) will say 'this is it for the month. It could happen before the next shipment,'" he continued.

"We have been fortunate. I see the day around the corner when we will have a limit," he added.

Ladner said his seafood store in Bay St. Louis is also suffering from the gas crunch, and said if the trucking problems are not solved soon, shrimpers will suffer a financial setback.

"Business here is dead," Ladner said of his seafood store.

"People can't move and New Orleans people who usually come here during the weekend are not coming over because of the gas shortage," he explained.

"What is worse is the trucking situation. Something has to give in here in this country," he continued.

"We are getting the shrimp, but the problems is getting it from the freezer to the transports for shipment up north," he explained.

"No trucks are here to take the shrimp out," Ladner said.

He explained the shrimpers have sold the shrimp "on paper," but if trucks do not move the seafood, fishermen will suffer a financial disaster.

"Those people have borrowed a lot of money from banks, and if they don't get the shrimp out of the freezers, they will be in deep trouble," Ladner said.

"It is all paperwork money, and fishermen are already hurting. It could get worse," he added.

Task Force.....

The neighborhood children help task force workers with the planting of grass and flowers and picking up litter.

Also, the children receive instruction on yard maintenance and mosquito control.

Task force members include Clementine Thompson, 19; Teddy Haynes, 16; Michael Carter, 18 and Eileen Jones, 18.

Jones a summer youth employee, exclaims, "I really think the project is great—we are trying to add refinement to our surroundings."

Jones says children in the projects who help with the clean-up efforts are given awards at the end of the week.

The mayor's task force furnishes residents with mosquito control pamphlets from the State Health Department.

River Rally axed due to fee dispute

By RICH ADAMS

A canoe race slated for July 15 at McLeod Water Park in Kiln has been cancelled because a five-member park commission refused to waive a $1 entrance charge to persons entering the park, according to the Central Hancock Jaycees.

The Jourdan River Rally at McLeod was scheduled to be run July 15 to conclude a six-race series of canoe races presented by the Pearl River Basin Development District and the Pearl River Valley Development Association.

According to Richard Hoda, treasurer of the Jaycees chapter which was local sponsor of the event, the contest has been cancelled as well as a political rally and softball tournament scheduled for the July 13-15 weekend at the park.

Text of that letter appears in this issue in the Letters To The Editor column.

"The five-member commission which reportedly refused to waive the entrance fee is composed of Mary Gaillier, District One; Perry Gibson, District Two; Billie Shaw, District

Three; Shelton Seuzeneau, District Four; and Uless Bergeron, District Five.

According to the letter, signed by Jaycee President W.R. (Bill) Ahlers Sr., Secretary M.J. Necaise, and Treasurer Richard Hoda, the five-member committee voted not to waive the $1 entrance fee.

"...we have been forced to cancel our advertised canoe regatta, softball tournament, and political rally," the letter reads.

"We hereby set forth these causes for this cancellation:

"The McLeod Water Park Commission, whose members are appointed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, has voted not to waive the entrance fee to the park during the event," the letter reads.

"As a civic organization, the Central Hancock Jaycees cannot allow people to come to the park and see a race and not be able to see it."

Funds are to be used in improving the park and in sponsoring other activities and events in the community. "No substitute for the entrance fee has been announced."

BUTTERFLIES ARE FREE—Virginia Johnson and Sam Allison, standing, and Stuart Allen and Pam Griffin rehearse for 'Butterflies Are Free,' a Bay Little Theatre performance which opens tonight and runs through Saturday.

Bay Little Theatre opens 'Butterflies' tonight

The Sam Cuevas production of 'Butterflies Are Free' opens tonight at the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre on Boardman Avenue.

The production will run through Saturday. Curtain time for each production is 8:15 p.m.

The play is directed by Mike Cuevas and stars Stuart Allen and Pam Griffin in the leading roles.

Virginia Johnson portrays Mrs. Baker and Sam Allison appears as Ralph Austin.

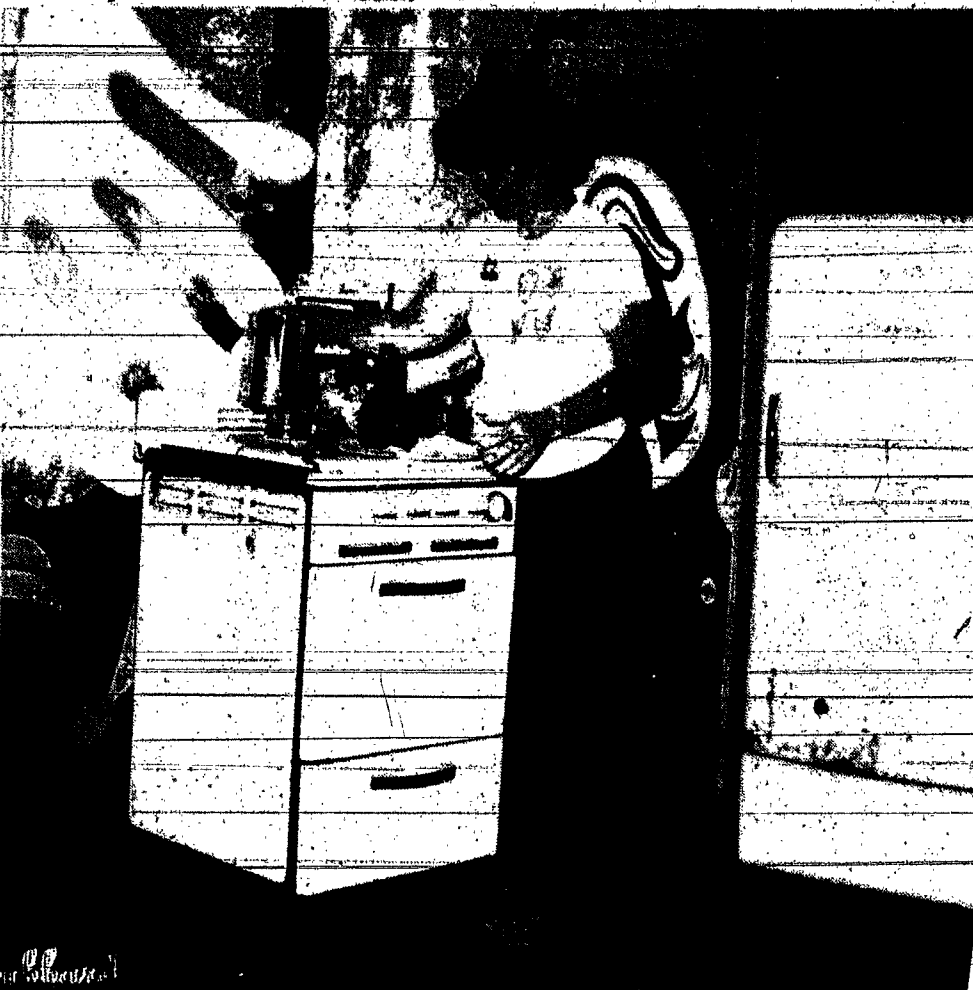

Don Baker, played by Allen, has moved from the security of Seaside to a coldwater flat in the city and is on his own for the first time in his life.

Next door is his zany little blonde neighbor Jill Tanner

(Griffin), who with Don tries to convince Mom Baker that Don is not 21 going on 10, but really big enough to manage in the big city.

The story has the same story line as the motion picture of the same title taken from the play, starring Goldie Hawn and Edward Albert.

Tickets for each performance will be available at the door for $3.

Mosquitoes Infect Dogs By Transferring Parasites

MISSISSIPPI-STATE—The mosquito is a blood-feeding insect that feeds on a variety of host animals.

The major problem for most animals is irritation, but dogs may suffer from heartworm infection. Some estimates place the infestation rate for this parasite as high as 50 percent among hunting dogs and strays, says Dr. James Jarratt, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service pest-management specialist.

The heartworm is a filarial worm transferred from dog to dog by mosquitoes. Once the infective larvae enter the dog's system, the worms start appearing in the right side of the heart within two to four months. After four months, the adult stage is reached. At this time, the females begin producing immature stages of microfilariae, says Dr. Jarratt. They may remain in the circulatory system for as long as three years.

To become infective to the dog, the microfilariae must develop in the body of the mosquito. Once in the body of the mosquito, it takes about 14 to 21 days for microfilariae to become infective larvae. From this point, the mosquito can infect another dog, thereby starting the cycle again.

The presence of this parasite can be detected by your veterinarian through a blood test. If the test is positive for microfilariae, a treatment program may be started to remove the adult heartworms from the dog. By far, the most effective and practical means of controlling heartworms is to prevent them from reaching the adult stage, says Dr. Jarratt.

A drug administered daily throughout the mosquito season effectively breaks the cycle and prevents the infective larvae from reaching maturity. Several precautions are necessary, adds the specialist.

The drug must not be given to dogs with established heartworm infestations.

Newspaper ad joins Waveland newlyweds

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
"I'm a 72-year-old widow, 5 feet tall, 140 lbs., brown hair and eyes, good cook and housekeeper. Want to meet nice-kind man for marriage that is willing to relocate and has car—lonely and alone send photo."

This advertisement, which ran in a New Orleans tabloid called 'The Center Ads,' resulted in the marriage of Edith Davenport and 80-year-old Henry Jack Muir Sr. who now reside at 104 Apt. E, Central Ave., Waveland.

The pair were married May 31, 1979 after corresponding by mail for approximately two months.

"I was living in St. Bernard Parish, La., and Edith was living in Valley Park, Mo., when the ad was published," Muir recalled.

"After reading Edith's advertisement I sent a reply to the paper with $1 for forwarding charges," he continued. "In the letter I described myself—my likes dislikes etc."

Muir said he and Ms. Davenport corresponded for about two months, which included the exchange of pictures and other information.

"We met for the first time at a New Orleans airport at 11:16 a.m. May 31, 1979 and were later married that night at 7," he remarked.

"It's been a good marriage," he proclaimed, "I've been married three times and this is the best one yet."

Muir said he became interested in Ms. Davenport through her letters. "It was the way she wrote them and what she put in them that I liked," he explained.

The couple said they used the newspaper ad section to form their relationship because using the paper was "practical."

"Besides," said Mr. Muir, "I was lonesome and I am not much of a mixer—so the ad seemed the best way."

Book Review

'The Parents Book About Divorce,' By Richard A. Gardner, M.D. To Be Published July 1

By Bantam Books
Among the fears facing divorced parents, one of the most overwhelming is the effect of separation on their children.

Dr. Richard A. Gardner, a psychiatrist with long experience in treating the children of divorced parents, and the author of The Boys and Girls Book About Divorce, gives sound, professional advice on how to help children during this difficult time in this latest paperback.

In the book, Dr. Gardner offers realistic guidance on such problems as how and when the children should be told about the impending divorce, what they should be told about such special situations as alcoholism, extra-marital affairs and the gay parent, and how to settle custody and visitation rights with the child's welfare in mind.

He also describes the reactions that children are likely to have after divorce—anger, insecurity, fear of abandonment and sexual problems—and advises parents on how to alleviate them, and how to determine when a child needs professional help.

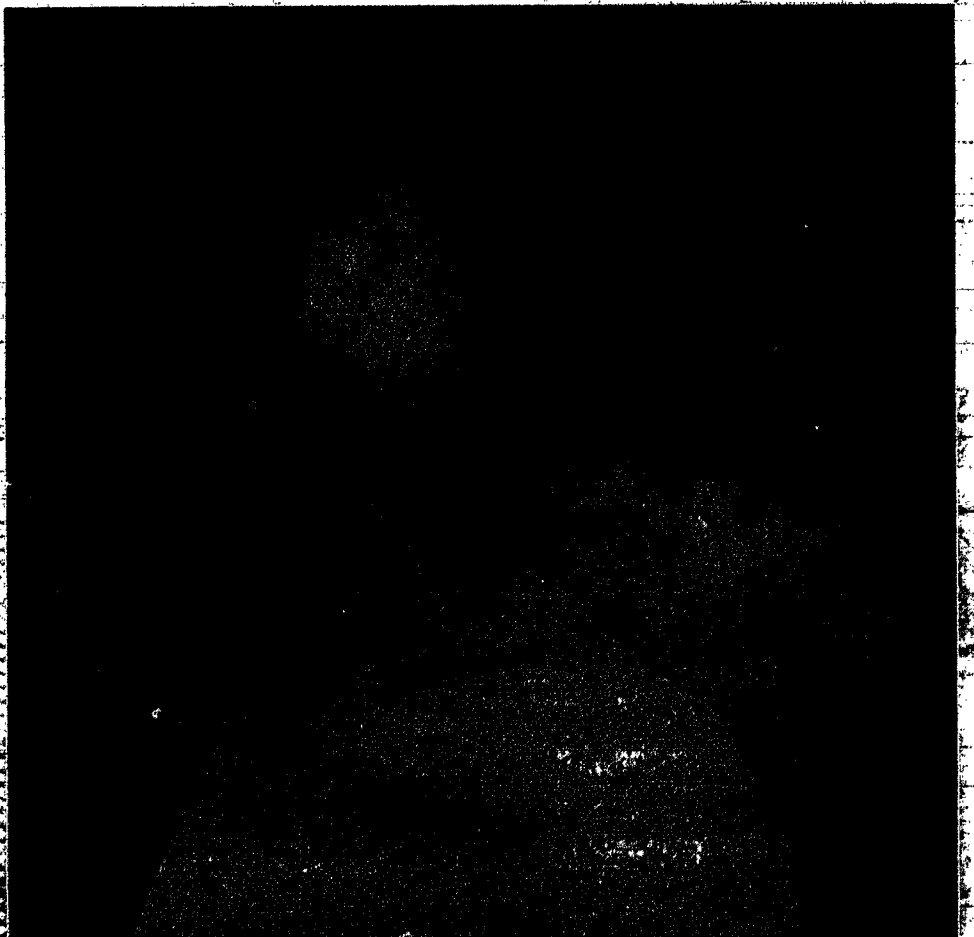

Above all, Dr. Gardner affirms that proper preparation and loving support can do much to ease the shock and pain of the separation.

Although it is directed specifically to divorcing parents, THE PARENTS BOOK ABOUT DIVORCE can be of value to teachers, social workers and counselors, clergy and divorce lawyers, anyone who is involved in the welfare of children in divorce.

Dr. Gardner, a child psychiatrist and a family psychologist, is a faculty member of the Columbia University School of Medicine and Psychiatry.

Area youth advances to PH&R semi-finals

Kenny Sharp, 12, of Bay St. Louis advanced to the division Pitch, Hit & Run Competition to be held in Arlington Stadium, Sunday before the 7:35 p.m. Texas Rangers-Oakland A's game.

STARTING LINE of last year's Pearl River Classic Canoe race will be recreated Saturday as boaters begin the 10-mile trek at 1 p.m. near the Ross Barnett Reservoir. The race is part of the Pearl River Boatway Canoe Race Series, which was slated to close at McLeod Park in Hancock County with the Jourdan River Rally July 15. Reports indicate that race has been relocated because park officials refused to eliminate a $1 admission charge to the park. Entry fees for the Pearl River Classic are $5 per person and forms may be obtained at the park.

youth program for boys and girls 9-12 sponsored by the more than 2300 Burger King restaurants. The program is co-sponsored by the National Recreation and Park Association and was developed in cooperation with the President's Council on Physical Fitness & Sports.

Kenny is among 96 youths competing in the 12 division competitions being held in major league ballparks June 22 to July 4. Kenny got to the division competition on the basis of points scored in district competition by pitching at a target, hitting for distance and running the base path for speed.

The two highest division scorers from each age group will advance to the finals at the All-Star Game July 17 in the Seattle Kingdome. The youngsters and their parents will be the guests of Major League Baseball and Burger King.

The eight finalists, four winners and four runners-up, will receive their trophies on national TV as part of the All-Star pre-game festivities. The eight youngsters will also have their names inscribed on the special Pitch, Hit and Run plaque in baseball's hall of fame at Cooperstown, New York.

Babe Ruth, Dixie league tournaments slated in July

By RICH ADAMS
Tournaments for Babe Ruth and Dixie Youth Leagues will be conducted in July at Pass Christian's VFW Memorial Ball Park, according to League Director John Gallagher.

A Dixie Youth sub-district tournament which pits Pass Christian, Picayune, Gulfport and Long Beach squads against another will be played beginning July 7, Gallagher reported.

The contests will be double elimination matches, the winner of the event advancing to the district match in Pascagoula in July.

Bay St. Louis' Babe Ruth squad will participate in the district match to be played beginning July 12 at the Pass Christian ballpark, Gallagher said.

Pass Christian, Orange Grove, Saucier, and Long Beach will participate in that contest, which is a double elimination tourney.

A 'get acquainted' night will be conducted for the players and coaches at 7 p.m. July 12. Refreshments will be served, according to the tourney director.

Drawing for brackets will also be conducted at the meeting, he added.

The winning team from the district meet will advance to the state finals, being conducted later in July in Long Beach.

For more information on either of the tournaments, contact John Gallagher at 255-1214 or call Willie Reed at 452-7173.

Toney Penna Talks Golf

Many golfers wonder if they should round out their sets of clubs with some high-number, or utility, woods. So let's take a look at what those 7, 8 and 9 woods do.

But because most golfers are more familiar with the 3 wood, we'll use it as an example of the advantages of utility woods even though it doesn't fall into the utility-wood category.

The 5 wood, with loft of 11°, has almost replaced the 2 iron in most standard sets of clubs bought by the average golfer.

For one thing, it's easier to get out of the rough with a 5 wood than with an iron.

Plus, most golfers feel they can control woods better than irons. That's probably because woods are lighter than comparable irons—static weight of a 5 wood is 13-3/4 ounces or less, while a 2 iron weighs about 14-7/8 ounces.

And there's more resilience in woods than in irons, so they give you more loft. As a result, you get more distance—especially when you're hitting into the wind. Playing into the wind, though, you're better off using an iron to keep the ball lower.

This time of the year morning fishing is best. If you plan a fishing trip, you should leave early and try to make it back around noon.

Thunderstorms are more numerous in the afternoon hours, and they are not much fun to ride out on the water. We are approaching that time of the year when we celebrate our independence as a free nation, and the freedom loving sportsmen of this area will be out in full force during the July 4th week taking advantage of our God-given county and outdoor beauty.

The waters in our local area will be filled with boats this coming week, so respect all laws.

Life preservers should be worn at all times even if you are a good swimmer.

Boating can be fun if common sense and respect are used.

Remember, it is better to be safe than sorry—alcohol and water do not mix.

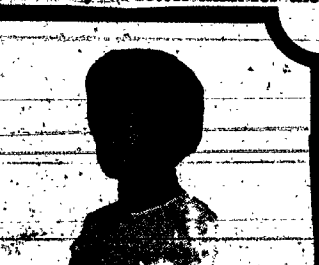

The Gulfport deep-sea fishing rodeo will be July 4-8. Registration for the rodeo is free—and some nice prizes will be awarded.

So, if you plan on fishing, you better get registered.

Local Record Holder Signed Two year letter man for the

DAVE HARVILL
Echo Outdoorsman

Biloxi High Indians, Robert Hill, has signed to play football for the semi-professional Biloxi Buccaneers.

Hill played ball at Biloxi High in 1971 and 1972 where he was a defensive back and punt return man in his junior year.

In his senior year Hill was a full duty man playing defensive back, wide receiver and running punt returns. Hill's outstanding play earned him all-Big-3 Honorable mention in High School.

The key to Hill's play is his speed. An all around track man, he has run a 4.3 40 yard dash and a 9.5 100 yard dash.

While at Biloxi High, Hill was voted most valuable player on his track team in 1972.

Hill played college football for Mississippi College in Clinton. In his freshman year he played as a defensive back and converted over to wide receiver for his remaining three years at Mississippi College.

Holding several conference and school records is one of the high points in Hill's college career.

He holds a Gulf South Conference and school record for the most passes caught in a season (54) and the most passes caught in a career (134). These records helped Hill make the Gulf South Conference Second team at wide receiver.

At 5'6", 145 pounds Hill has been branded as "too small for football" before, but as in the past hopes to prove critics of his size wrong by earning a spot on the starting lineup for the Buccaneers.

Coach Pops Billon feels he may be able to do that.

"His speed and hands are enough of an asset to balance whatever lack of size he may have," Billon said.

A resident of Biloxi, Hill coaches football, basketball, and track at Michel Jr. High in Biloxi.

The Buccaneers are holding open practices at Pass Christian Recreation Park on Pelitius Drive in Pass Christian at 9:30 a.m. Players still interested in trying out for positions on the roster can apply one-half hour before the practice session at the field or contact the Biloxi Buccaneers at P. O. Box 541, Pass Christian, Ms. 39571—(374-8254).

Hydrilla is Godzilla of fresh water lakes

HYDRILLA: THE QUIET KILLER
A quiet killer is slowly strangling freshwater lakes in the Southeast, turning one after another into weedy quagmires. This quiet killer is Hydrilla, a water weed first observed in the United States in Florida in 1960. Since then it has strangled 200,000 acres of freshwater in that state and infested half-a-million more.

Public agencies in Florida spend up to $8 million annually to control Hydrilla, but even at that cost cannot treat all of it. And control is only temporary: the weed is practically indestructible.

Now Hydrilla is spreading to other southern states, including Mississippi.

At Lake Seminole, on the Florida-Georgia-Alabama border, Hydrilla covered one acre of freshwater in 1971. It now covers 2,000 acres, despite intensive efforts to control the weed.

"It seems like just a matter of time before it spreads to nearby waters," said Angus Gholson, resource manager at the U.S. Army Corps of Engineer Lake.

"Last fall it turned up in the reservoir at Coffeesville, Alabama," said Mike Eubanks, a biologist for the Corps' Mobile District.

Hydrilla is a small, green, branching plant that grows in dense clumps. It reproduces by fragmentation, and its fragments can travel long distances in water.

Hydrilla can block sunlight from reaching other plants, and it can clog waterways, making it difficult to navigate. It can also harm fish and other aquatic life.

HOOP HISTORYMAKERS

A former NBA player holds the lifetime records for the most points scored, highest scoring average, and the most field goal attempts. Who is he?

Wesley Matthews played 1,045 games in the NBA and scored 17,777 points. He also holds the record for the highest field goal percentage in NBA history.

Matthews played for the New York Knicks and the Philadelphia 76ers. He was a key player for both teams during the 1950s and 1960s.

Matthews was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 1980. He is remembered for his exceptional shooting ability and his leadership on the court.

Matthews' record for the most field goal attempts is 10,450. He also holds the record for the most free throw attempts, with 1,045.

What currently active NBA player holds the record for the highest lifetime field goal shooting percentage?

Steve Nash holds the record with a career field goal percentage of 88.1 percent. He played for the Phoenix Suns and the Dallas Mavericks.

Nash is known for his exceptional shooting accuracy and his ability to create scoring opportunities for himself and his teammates.

Nash was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame in 2018. He is considered one of the greatest shooters in NBA history.

Nash's record for the highest field goal shooting percentage is 88.1 percent. He also holds the record for the most assists in NBA history, with 10,450.

tually," he explained. Coffeyville is only about 60 miles from the Mobile Delta, that worries Eubanks. "It's a very real possibility that Hydrilla will become a problem for the Delta area," he said. "Fragments of the weed probably have spread from Coffeyville into the Delta already."

Federal and state agencies plan to conduct a comprehensive aquatic plant survey in Alabama this fall, Eubanks said. They hope to locate all Hydrilla in the state, to determine the real extent of the problem.

In Mississippi, Hydrilla has been discovered in a farm pond near Starkville, just 20 miles from the Columbus Lock and Dam on the Tombigbee River. It also has appeared at several locations on the Flint River in Georgia, according to Eubanks.

Hydrilla roots in lake bottoms and grows to the surface.

The weed has clusters of three to six whorled leaves spaced along its stems. The stems bear tubers or "winter buds" resembling small green cockleburrs from fall through early spring.

In the late summer and fall it has small white flowers floating on or near the water surface. Pea-sized tubers rest at the end of the plant's thick, wiry roots in the lake bottom.

Hydrilla closely resembles two other aquatic plants, Brazilian and Canadian Elodea. It also looks like Eurasian watermilfoil, fanwort, coontail, and bladderwort, but is coarser.

Why is Hydrilla a problem? "It grows from the lake bottom to the surface. When it infests an area, it fills the water column completely," said Lake Seminole's Gholson.

"It forms a thick mat of stems and leaves that restricts water flow and hinders all water activities."

"It inhibits all water-oriented sports and becomes a real safety hazard. In Florida the deaths of several water skiers have been attributed to Hydrilla tangling the skis."

"Fishing suffers because the weed provides cover for small forage fish, resulting in less food and hence depletion of larger predator and game fish like bass. It also depletes oxygen in the lake, and can kill fish this way," said Gholson.

The Seminole resource manager also fears that the thick mass of Hydrilla may work its way into the lake's powerhouse and cause serious water intake problems there. Hydrilla also causes other problems. "It hinders commercial navigation," said Gholson. "It provides breeding habitat for mosquitoes and other insect pests."

According to Eubanks, Hydrilla infestation also speeds up the eutrophication process of a lake. This is a natural process which causes lakes, and especially man-made lakes, to fill with sediment.

Eutrophication usually takes at least a century and often much longer, but the presence of Hydrilla in a lake can hasten the process significantly.

"The weed is definitely a lake killer," said Eubanks. Hydrilla presents an especially difficult problem because no means of permanently controlling the plant is known.

"The plant is a study in survival," said Eubanks. "It has four means of reproduction: stem fragments, the root and grow; the tubers resprout in spring; tubers get separated from the plant and grow into new plants; and the flowers produce seeds."

Fortunately only one sex of the plant exists in the United States, so it cannot reproduce by seed here. If it could, the problem would be compounded.

Hydrilla has no natural enemies in North America, said Eubanks. It grows rapidly, up to one inch per day. It can grow at lower light levels, hence can grow deeper than native aquatic plants.

It is not a preferred fish or wildlife food. Hydrilla is also cold hardy. It has been found growing green in ice-covered lakes. For all these reasons, Hydrilla tends to crowd out native aquatic plants.

The plant can be controlled with chemicals, said Eubanks, but treatment is expensive. The chemical alone costs $200 per acre per treatment, not counting the cost of application. And the effects are temporary, lasting at best one year.

"The treatment process is really a chemical mowing," Eubanks said, "because the treatment cannot destroy plant tubers buried in the lake bed. These tubers can lie dormant for up to 10 years and still reproduce. So the Hydrilla must be treated over and over again."

"The only way to control the plant is to prevent its appearance in a lake. Once you find it's usually too late. It's nearly impossible to get rid of."

That's why public awareness and involvement at this stage of the game is critical.

Boaters can help prevent the spread of Hydrilla by removing all plant fragments from boats, motors and trailers before leaving a lake.

"Hydrilla is spread to public waters first, by the boating public, and especially by fishermen who move from lake to lake over long distances," said Al Burkhalter, head of aquatic plant control for the Florida Department of Natural Resources.

"Boat ramps are usually the first place it appears. Once the Hydrilla is there, it becomes practically impossible to use a boat without getting the weed on its runners and propellers."

"I think the spread of Hydrilla can be prevented by alerting the boating public and people who are moving it," he said.

Boats and live wells should not be drained in driveways or streets where Hydrilla fragments may find their way into storm or sanitary sewers and hence into bodies of water.

Aquarium owners can also help in the fight against Hydrilla. The plant is often found in domestic aquariums. A few simple precautions can prevent its escape into U.S. waters.

Remove all aquatic plants from your aquarium when draining it. Empty aquarium water onto your lawn, not where it can get into sanitary drains. "When disposing of aquarium plants, wrap them in paper and throw them into the garbage."

Individuals can also help by keeping an eye out for Hydrilla. If you see a water plant you suspect might be Hydrilla, wrap a sample in a wet paper towel, seal it in a plastic bag and send it to:

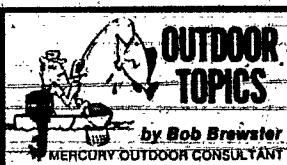

Mike Eubanks, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Mobile District Planning Division, SAMPD-EE, P.O. Box 2233, Mobile, Ala. 36623.

Be sure to mention where you found the plant and how you may be contacted for further details.

FACT OR FANCY

Many of the falsehoods about nature arose through ignorance, say the outdoor recreation staff at Mercury Outboards, who point out that it is easy to blame natural occurrences when better explanations are not available.

An example of this is the notion that toads cause warts. They don't, but toads do secrete a slimy, smelly—and probably bad-tasting—liquid that wards off potential predators.

It's easy to see how this could be associated with skin growths on youngsters who are fascinated with toads.

Nature's true oddities are just as fascinating as the fanciful tales.

Quite the opposite from the toad that doesn't cause warts is a small South American tree frog that can kill you simply by touching you.

Again, a skin secretion is to blame, only this time it's highly poisonous.

And then there's the dotting mother cavefish of the midwest who carries her live young in her mouth and gills until they are four to five months old, only to later eat them if she has a chance.

How about sharks, which have no bones but rely upon a skeletal structure of cartilage to hold things together?

Or bees which become intoxicated when collecting nectar from fermented fruit?

And raccoons which eat the same fruit and live high for a while.

All these and many more are the "truthful" oddities about nature which make the outdoor world so fascinating.

Garden clubs slate environment workshop

An Environmental Encounter Workshop sponsored by the Garden Clubs of Mississippi will be conducted September 18, 19 and 20 at the Paul B. Johnson State Park in Hattiesburg. The three day workshop is open to all interested citizens.

The EE workshop is conducted by National Council of Garden Club facilitators trained in Process Approach to Learning. The purpose of the workshop is to bring together a group to participate in environmental education activities, explore ways of implementing EIE programs at the local level, and develop techniques of involving people in various types of learning situations.

The workshop is not oriented toward learning facts and figures, but rather to sharing methods and techniques that might help to better involve people in observing and interpreting their environment.

Cost of the workshop is $35.00 which includes all meals, lodging and materials used. Attendance is limited to forty participants. For further information write Mrs. J. Hamlin Harsch, P.O. Box 980, Mississippi 39206.

Senior Job Registry seeking employers

The Hancock County Senior's Job Registry is urging prospective employers and homeowners in need of assistance to contact the agency.

"If you have a vacancy in your organization or a repair or paint job at home, you need to register with the Seniors' Job Registry to get your job done. We can find a suitable person to fill your need, said Ms. Wilma H. Miller, coordinator.

"Call the Seniors' Job Registry to employ a qualified person 55 years or older who will do your work with maximum efficiency and minimum absenteeism," she stated.

"Senior Citizens have a vast amount of knowledge and years of experience to offer.

They need to work to supplement their low income and will accept positions by the hour, day, week or month, she continued.

"If you need a clerk typist, bookkeeper, sitter, cook, painter, carpenter, maid, nurses aide, or any other qualified person, call the Seniors' Job Registry," Ms.

Miller added.

The Seniors' Job Registry is a free community service provided by the National Council of Senior Citizens Senior Aides Program, funded by the Department of Labor through the Southern Mississippi Planning and Development District.

The Job Registry, located in the Waveland Civic Center on Coleman Avenue, is open from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. For information, call 467-8255.

SUMMER CLEAN-UP—Youths, who reside at the housing project on Ballentine Street, discard dead leaves and litter in a trash bag. The children were assisted last week by a 4-member clean-up task force. The force, created by Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett, will attempt to beautify housing projects located on Ballentine and Sycamore streets this summer. (Staff Photo—Leslie Williams)

USM's mini-quarter schedule announced

Mini-Quarter, the University of Southern Mississippi's annual summer pre-registration and orientation session for prospective students consists of five two-day sessions, three one-day sessions and a night session for adults, beginning July 16 and ending Aug. 10.

A record attendance of 2,360 came through the program last year and director Becky Brechtel expects almost as many this year.

Some of the sessions are already filled to the limit of 200 persons for the one-day sessions and of 300 on the two-day sessions, Brechtel said. The July 16-17 session will be for students planning to enter the College of Liberal Arts (LA), College of Education and Psychology (EPY), the School of Home Economics (HE) and all university athletes.

Students planning to enter the College of Business Administration (CBA), the College of Fine Arts (FA) and the School of Library Services will be at mini-quarter July 19-20.

Students to be in the College of Science and Technology (Sci-Tech), the School of Nursing, the Honors College and the School of Health Physical Education and Recreation (HPER) will attend the July 23-24 session.

The August 2-3 session will involve the prospective majors in CBA, LA, EPY, and Library Service. The last two-day session on August 6-7 will preregister FA, Sci-Tech, HPER, and HE majors.

The night session on July 25 from 5-9 p.m. is limited to students 25 years of age and over. The July 27, 31 and Aug. 10 sessions as well as the adult session are open to freshmen and transfer students.

Students of all majors may register during the one-day sessions except for Fine Arts majors on July 27 and Aug. 10. Students undecided about a major should register for a LA session where special counselors will be available.

The sessions will include placement tests, advisement, preregistration and discussion with faculty members, plus a hamburger barbeque and disco on the two-day session. Sixteen USM students will serve as facilitators, introducing students to the campus.

For additional information contact the Office of High School and Junior College Relations, Southern Station Box 5011, Hattiesburg, 39401.

Library's July 4th party slated today

By PRIMA WUSNACK

Flags will be waving today as the City-County Library holds its annual Fourth of July Party, one of the many events in the "Summer of Champions" Reading Program.

There are 231 children signed up for the program, said children's librarian, June Dearman, and participation thus far has been tremendous.

Some of the weekly events held have been a magic workshop, a salute to the circus and an arts and crafts day.

The Fourth of July Party which begins today at 10:30 a.m. will feature a movie, "Uncle Sam Magoo," followed by a puppet show and refreshments.

"The Bridge of Adam Rush" will be shown at the program on July 3 at 2:30 p.m. All books for the summer reading program must be read by July 20, reminded Mrs. Dearman, and the program will end with a dance review and presentation of reading certificates on July 26.

POLDARK II

Committee meetings were delayed. Bridge games were halted in mid-rubber. Family visits were paid only on the condition that it could be watched. London's Evening Mail was speaking of "Poldark," the 18-episode romantic adventure series that will be rebroadcast on Mississippi ETV at 9 p.m. Mondays, beginning July 2.

S. Grady Thigpen

Country philosopher theorizes inflation begins with taxes

Did you ever think that when some new government program is enacted, it is in reality just another addition to the burdensome taxes you pay?

In 1930 we paid no income tax, no sales tax, no social security tax and ad valorem taxes were low.

Back then prices on what one bought were low: sugar was 5 cents per lb., Irish potatoes 50 cents to $1 a bushel, a good meal in a hotel or restaurant 50 cents to $1.

When the government started all kinds of so called programs, and a multitude of give-aways, taxes not only went up but the prices of everything we buy also went up.

When wages go up, everything we buy automatically goes up. If the railway employees get wage increases, freight rates go up and everybody has to pay for it in extra transportation charges.

When a merchant has increased expenses, higher taxes as an instance, he has to at once raise the prices on what he has for sale. Result: you pay for it.

Thus, when you read in the paper that some new so called program is passed by congress, that means in reality another raise in your taxes and expenses.

What this merry-go-round of higher and higher prices will lead to no one seems to know, but I am afraid that we will have in not too distant future a depression, or panic, that will make the 1930's look like good times.

When your government votes billions for Korea or some other place, they have in reality voted to burden you with more taxes.

They don't call it a tax to benefit some foreign nation for you to pay for but it is in reality a tax on you that they have voted. Why not ask your man in Congress about it?

People were more self reliant back 70 years ago. They knew how to take care of themselves and expected nothing from the government or anyone else.

I grew up on a farm in central Mississippi. That farm was a self-sustaining entity—dependent on no one except ourselves.

Practically all the food we ate and feed for stock consumed on that farm was produced there.

When cotton got so low in price in 1900, farm income was at an all time low. Cotton sold for as little as $17.50 a bale and to get that much it had to be hauled 20 miles on a wagon to a railroad point.

To show how independent that farm was, I've heard my father say many times that he spent less than $25 in 1900 in stores in one whole year.

Yet we had an abundance of good food to eat. A farmer who did not produce his own food back then was considered shiftless in the area where I lived.

"Eating out of paper bags" was the mark of a failure. If one wanted to low-rate another, he would say, "Why he eats out of a paper bag."

For instance, people produced their own meat, they processed it and knew how to take care of it until it was needed, and they did it without electric refrigerators and home freezers.

The old timers were thrifty; they used the whole hog. They pickled the feet, they processed the chittlins so that this was a delicious dish.

They cooked the liver because they knew there was valuable food in this organ though they had never heard of vitamins.

The brains mixed with eggs was a real delicacy.

The old time women knew how to select the meat to make the best sausage. They used the head, ears, and to make some of the best sausage.

They trimmed the fat, the desirable fat of the neck and

As they used to say, "They used everything except the squeal."

The mean and women of the period around 1898 had many other skills that are being lost to the young people of today.

We have become so dependent on others in so many ways that I often wonder what would happen if for any reason the transportation workers went on strike or if saboteurs blew up the road, railroads and bridges so that food could not be delivered, or if revolutionaries took over.

Back in the old days, people did not worry about anything like this because they relied on themselves to take care of themselves.

Growing our food is not only a safety measure but is economically wise. It saves money on grocery bills, but more important, home grown foods are healthier to eat and they save much on drug and doctor bills.

Fresh food right out of the garden or field is vitamin loaded, more nutritious and better tasting.

The food preservatives, no enrichers—just plain healthy food.

If you read what is on the packages of the food you buy you'll almost surely be amazed to see the many chemicals that are in 80 percent of our foods.

Poisonous sprays were not used on the foods we grew when I was on the farm. A California doctor at a meeting of that state's medical society recently said that he is sure that the number of people poisoned each year by pesticides in foods at least equals the traffic death toll.

Do you know what is the greatest industry in America today? I saw this statement sometime ago: "Agriculture is not America's greatest industry, nor is automobiles or manufacturing."

According to figures it is claimed that America's sickness bill is well over $50 billion, an average of $250 per person per year. Can any other industry, even the food industry, top that?

Apparently recognizing the possible, if not probable, dangers in these uncertain times, the Mormon Church, so I am told, has been urging its people to grow and provide their own foods as much as possible.

Ole Miss scientists fight top soil erosion

Erosion, the process that robs farm land of valuable topsoil and nutrients, may someday be better controlled through the help of a small device developed by engineers at The University of Mississippi and the U.S. Department of Agriculture's

Sedimentation Laboratory in Oxford. The electronic device enables scientists to obtain water samples — used to determine the amount of sediment and other pollutants carried by a stream — from any level of a river, lake or stream. It is used with a water sampler and a water level detector. When the water reaches the selected elevation, or level, the new device is triggered and activates the water sampler. The instrument now being tested in Colorado and Mississippi, was designed by Santiago Singarayar, an electronics engineer at Ole Miss, who works with the USDA as a design engineer. He was assisted by electrical engineering students Fred Thompson of Oxford and Bob Floyd of Memphis, who designed the final circuit boards. "Using an automated system, we're able to obtain samples just after a rain when the creek is rising and later when it is falling," said Dr. Frank Schiele, USDA research hydraulic engineer and "adjunct" associate professor of civil and electrical engineering at Ole Miss.

"We can now collect very accurate data about the rate of transport and the quantity of sediment being moved." Research information from tests in a creek near Batesville and at the Oxford sedimentation laboratory will be made available to the U.S. Corps of Engineers and the Soil Conservation Service for use as a basis for recommending conservation techniques and for testing effectiveness of conservation practices.

SAFETY CORNER

HAY HARVEST SAFETY

A hay harvest mishap can deliver a "hay-maker" to profits. Here's how you can mow down haying hazards: Run and keep equipment as directed in instruction manuals. Keep children off and away from equipment. Keep sheds in place. Stay away from moving parts. Stop machines before unclogging or servicing. Make sure helpers are trained and competent. Handle large round bales with a rear-mounted carrier, but if using a front loader, keep the load low and speed slow.

Farm News and Views

By MIKE WINDHAM
Writer-Reporter
Extension Service

In 1978, Mississippi farmers planted more rice than any other time in the state's history — about 220,000 acres. This year, the U.S.D.A. projects about five percent less, or about 210,000 acres will be planted in rice.

Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service Area Agronomist Bill Fagala says there is definitely an upward trend in rice production in Mississippi, even though acreage may be down somewhat compared with 1978.

He says the state has two good reasons for becoming a major rice production and the state is blessed with plenty of water.

Two major rice processors have opened plants in Greenville, and there's a rice producers' cooperative mill in Cleveland. Fagala says these three mills should help stabilize prices and induce more farmers to change to rice instead of cotton and soybean production.

Another who believes in the potential of rice production is

W.T. "Bill" Eifling of Hollandale. Bill, his father Herman and son Boyd have been producing rice in the Mississippi Delta since 1958. The Eiflings moved to Mississippi from Arkansas where Herman Eifling started producing rice 63 years ago. Bill Eifling says rice production can only go one way — up.

"There's more land suitable to rice in Mississippi than there is in any other rice-producing state."

Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana are pretty well saturated with rice producers. Here in Mississippi, there is more land suitable and adaptable to rice.

"With proper management and financing, the Delta can become a major rice-producing area," he says.

With all this good news, though, there are some dark shadows. Last year, rice producers over-produced, causing prices to fall. In 1978, prices were only about half of what they were in 1977.

Bill Eifling says anytime you over-produce or glut the market, producers are in trouble. There is only so much rice that can be consumed.

In places like China, most of the rice is produced and consumed within a mile of where it's grown.

In Mississippi, farmers must depend upon foreign markets to take the surplus rice. U.S. rice production fills only about three percent of the world's market, yet we export more than 50 percent of our annual production.

Expense is another problem. According to Eifling, rice costs between $300 and $350 per acre to produce.

Other expenses include costly, specialized equipment and services, such as ditch and levee building, land planes and levelers, airplanes and water wells.

The Hollandale rice producer says lending agencies take a hard look at a crop that requires such high production costs when the same land can produce other crops with cheaper input costs.

Looking into the future, though, Bill Eifling predicts that once farmers get out of the present "hard-times" and stabilize rice production so the market isn't flooded with over-production, then farmers will be able to make money.

Ag Affairs

It's uncanny, but today auto manufacturers spend more on health insurance than they do on the steel that goes into the nation's cars and trucks, and a one percent increase in the cost of health care boosts auto prices more than a similar increase in the price of steel.

Americans, especially those under age 65, are protesting the runaway cost of health care which has already passed that of the major industrial nations of the world.

Today Americans are writing checks and doling out the currency to pay for their health care at a rate that by the year 1974 was 7.4 percent of this nation's gross national product — highest of the most sophisticated nations. Sweden was second at 7.3 percent; Germany, 6.7; England, 5.2; and Japan 3.6.

"Massive government intervention in the financing of health care will not be helpful to the citizens or the health care system. We oppose national health insurance. It would be one more step in the socialization of this country. Nationalized medicine will be the law of the land unless those who believe in our free choice, private medical system unite aggressively work against it."

The farm group recommended that citizens participate in private health care plans, and provision for government assistance to persons who do not have enough income to take full advantage of such credits. The philosophy that has begotten the national dilemma is one that insists that no one, regardless of means, should be denied primary health care, that high quality care should be assured, and that the need for medical care should not cause serious financial hardship to individuals or families.

That this belief is in the mainstream of American politics is indicated by the fact that during the 95th Congress last year 45 separate plans were introduced to enlarge government's role in health care. The bills fell basically into two categories — one that would extend full coverage to the entire population, and the other that would continue the total programs for the elderly and add catastrophic insurance for the entire population.

The latter is essentially the Administration's plan, and if President Carter has his way with the plan a projected new outlay of $10 to $15 billion will be required.

All this drag on the American pocketbook is despite the fact that latest research suggests that life styles, diet, and exercise affect the health of the nation as much as medical treatment.

Appalled over what is happening in medical expenses, one major national organization — the American Farm Bureau Federation — recently issued a report that the private sector and away from the government. The farm group said:

And while the government grabbed more and more take home pay the average cost of a hospital stay in the United States rose from $1,000 in 1965 to only $500 in 1978.

Nationally, spending for health care in the U.S. has increased from $12 billion in 1950 to an estimated $200 billion this year. Adjusting for inflation, Americans are spending four times as much on health care today as they did in 1950. Of this amount, 80 percent is spent on personal health services.

Today one out of eleven dollars goes for health care with federal taxes now paying close to 30 percent of the nation's health bill compared to 12 percent prior to the passage of Medicare and Medicaid. The cost of these two programs is estimated at $50 billion in fiscal year 1979.

LEARN BY DOING

Organic Matter Can Produce Good Compost

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Homeowners and gardeners can contribute to ecology by composting their garden residue, grass clippings and leaves.

Dr. Milo Burnham, Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service horticulturist, says composting could reduce the large volume of organic trash handled by garbage pickup and, at the same time, produce a good source of organic matter for the home landscape. New technology has simplified modern composting. In fact, in summer, usable compost can be produced in a few weeks. Dr. Burnham suggests using only organic material such as grass clippings, leaves, household parings or light prunings. Shredding helps make a more uniform compost, but it isn't necessary. Be sure to introduce a good source of decomposing bacteria. A rich garden soil can be used, he adds.

EXERCISE
Some studies show that those who lead sedentary lives run a higher risk of heart attack than those who get regular exercise. Regular exercise also had been identified as a factor in recovery from heart attack. Exercises, such as running, swimming, walking briskly, bicycling and active sports challenge the circulatory system. Exercise health promotes "cardiovascular fitness."

OVERWEIGHT
Life expectancy may be shorter for people who are markedly overweight. Some studies show that overweight people have a higher risk of heart disease and other health problems. A doctor can help you determine if you are overweight and what you can do to lose weight.

ASK DOCTOR HIPPOCRATES

BY EUGENE SCHOENFELD, M.D.

Dear Dr. Schoenfeld:

My older sister recently noticed a lump on her right breast and her doctor recommended a biopsy.

She told my sister she might have cancer and if so, the breast would be removed.

I know some surgeons do a less radical operation now for breast cancer, followed by plastic surgery. But my family is thinking of Letrile therapy instead. What do you think?

ANSWER:

The mother of a close friend of mine was treated with Letrile two years ago. She had noticed a persistent sore in her mouth and consulted her dentist who recommended a biopsy.

The diagnosis was cancer. Consultants at a university hospital advised her to have an immediate operation, followed by plastic surgery to repair the resulting cosmetic defect.

The woman declined to follow their advice, choosing instead a series of healing diets, and meditative techniques.

But her discomfort increased and she sought out a clinic that administered Letrile therapy.

She became friendly with several other patients at the clinic.

Recently, the wife of one of the other cancer patients sent my friend's mother the following letter.

"Dear Edith: How are you? It's been a long time since I've heard from you. I tried to call the other night, but was told there was no phone number for you."

"Well, The Letrile didn't work for Allen. He went back to the hospital for chemotherapy. He was doing well for a while but we lost him last May. During this time we had another child, a girl, born two months early. Both children are doing fine considering they have no father."

"It's very important to me to find out how you turned out on Letrile, as I'm not done with it or the people who sell it. I know we had the choice, but it shouldn't be presented as being such a nice sugar-coated piece of candy when a person's life is at stake. To give hope where there is none is wrong. In our case very wrong."

"Please call me as soon as possible. Call me collect or have someone in your family do it for you. No mention of names will be given. I just want some more data to go with what I already have."

"There have been other people I've kept in touch with. All negative, of course. I have a lot of anger and bitterness because of Letrile and this is a way to rid myself of it."

"Hopefully, your experience at the clinic was better than ours. They promised paradise."

My friend's mother died long before the letter was sent. She resisted conventional therapy until the growth of her tumor made breathing difficult.

Radiation therapy relieved her symptoms, but she died a month after she was hospitalized.

Many cancer victims have taken Letrile and reported they were cured.

But many cancer victims have recovered spontaneously following visits to faith healers or after individual prayer.

So far, the only link between Letrile and recovery from cancer in some patients seems to be a belief in its power to cure.

The belief is the important factor in these cases, not the drug itself.

I think people should have available to them whatever treatment they desire. There is no justification, in my opinion, for criminalizing any chemical substance.

But I have yet to see evidence that Letrile has benefited anyone, except those who profit from its sale.

Other people, of course, have a totally different opinion of Letrile. In my next column I'll present the views of Andrew McNaughton, thought to be the prime force behind the manufacture, sale and use of this controversial substance.

Dear Dr. Schoenfeld:

I work for a weekly newspaper in Marin County, California. After we put each issue to bed, the staff relaxes in a hot tub.

I'd like to know what effect a hot tub has on spermicidal jelly used with a diaphragm.

Just to be safe, I'd like to put the diaphragm in before joining the editorial staff but on second thought, I wonder if this is really a useful precaution.

ANSWER:

I was speaking to a relative who lives in Marin County when your letter arrived, so I put the question to her. She said, "It depends on how hot the hot tub is."

Puzzled by her answer, I called Planned Parenthood of Marin and learned several women had recently asked the same question.

Rosemary Horn, a nurse-practitioner at that clinic, said the question was also raised at a meeting of contraception experts not long ago. One gynecologist advised, "Be especially wary of Jacuzzi's."

Ms. Horn, who must surely be impervious by now to name-freaks, points out the only complication of diaphragms is pregnancy.

Since no one but NBC television has researched sex in hot tubs, she recommended caution.

If you were merely soaking in warm water, the natural folds of the vagina would likely separate the water from your spermicidal jelly and diaphragm.

But Planned Parenthood sees many cases of diaphragm failure (usually resulting from failure to use the diaphragm).

Should frolic cause your tub to runneth over, you'd best consider an alternate means of birth control.
